I was wondering if there was a way to enforce a policy where admins cannot add new folders, like maybe limiting them to 1000 folders. A: I think the approach would be to show an error message saying that there is already 1000 folders and just check that the user can perform the action - in that case for example, you could store the number of folders in the database. If a user tries to create a new folder, you could also store that information in the database, the first time the user clicks on "Add New Folder", and check whether that information is valid. Hope it helps. Hello All. I would like to inform you that iÂ have the newest version of Celemony Melodyne Studio 2017 version 4.1.1.5.681 could you please tell me how to make a crack for that version or it is impossible? I have really bad internet connection and I need this version for work and another crack is not accepted by the system. Please help me. Thank you very much.Kodak to Manufacture 1 Million LCD Screens by Q3'09 The company believes that its efforts to improve its business in the display panel space will lead to increased demand for these products. Kodak's new CineXcel display manufacturing facility in San Diego will be the first to build displays for cameras. The company plans to have about 30 new printing cameras on the market by 2013. Kodak reports that it is shipping 170,000 of its new digital cameras a month. The company will quadruple its digital camera shipments over the course of the next three years. Kodak's revenue and profit both jumped. The company also plans to invest about $50 million in 2010 for research and development, manufacturing, marketing, and sales.
